From MYO Board President Sandra Baskin:

I am so very saddened to hear about Clare. She was the backbone of MYO and was John's strongest support system with all aspects of running the organization. I really got to know her on all the MYO summer tours together. She was a great lady - kind, intelligent, and had a great sense of humor. She and John were inseparable and always won the "Cutest Couple" award on the tours he led! She will be deeply missed.

About the Music Directors

Rachel Nagle

Rachel Nagle

Rachel Nagle (Suffolk Senior Treble Choir) began her career in 2007, teaching high school choir, and elementary music in the Commack School District. During this time, she also served as children's choir conductor through the Stony Brook Children's Program, and completed three levels of Orff certification at Hofstra University. She has since had the pleasure and experience of teaching all grades, K-12, and serving as a SCMEA All-County festival conductor. Rachel received her M.S. in Music Education from Queens College and her B.M. in Music Education with concentrations in voice and music in special education from the Crane School of Music at SUNY Potsdam. She has spent the last twelve years as Elwood-John Glenn High School's Choral Director, where she has cultivated a rich musical community within her classroom, and established the select a cappella ensemble "Acappellwood." In addition to her three choirs, she has been the director and vocal director of several musical theater productions. Career highlights include touring Saltzberg, Vienna and Prague with her choirs, alongside the high school's band and orchestra, and the time spent advising the Natural Helpers and GSA clubs. She is currently teaching elementary music and beginning choirs, as well as secondary vocal lessons. Along with this exciting change, Rachel is thrilled to join the MYO team this year. Rachel assisted in developing and directing the a cappella group established through Long Island Children's Choir (LICCC) alongside her husband, James, and continues to create accessible a cappella arrangements for contemporary ensembles. In addition to her teaching, she has enjoyed performing as a soprano in SOLI, and eVoco Voice Collective's Treble Ensemble. Rachel currently resides in Stony Brook, NY with her husband and their two sons.
